

JEWISH BAKERS DEFY UNTERMYER ON 'SPITE STORE'

Union Keeps Place Open and Indictment for Conspiracy
Will Be Asked.

An investigation of the affairs of the Jewish Bakers' Union looking to the indictment of its officers and Executive Committee on charges of conspiracy to restrain trade will be asked by the Lockwood committee of the June Grand Jury, which will be sworn in on June 5.

That Grand Jury action would be requested was decided upon yesterday after members of the committee learned that in defiance of the ultimatum of Samuel Untermyer, counsel to the committee, the "spite store" of the union at No. 27 Avenue C reopened yesterday. It was testified before the committee last week that the members of the union were taxed $15,000 to defray the expenses of the store next door to that of Max Schlessinger, who had refused to sign an oppressive union agreement.

Last Friday the committee wound up its investigation of the Jewish Bakers' Union by the examination of Jacob Goldstone, organizer of the International Bakery Workers' Union. Mr. Untermyer gave Mr. Goldstone until the end of the day to close the shop, which for the last two weeks had been selling bread and rolls at less than cost in an attempt to ruin Schlessinger's business.

The store closed Friday night because it was the Jewish Sabbath and was closed all Saturday, but it was reopened yesterday.

Samuel Krell, one of the officials of the Executive Committee, who refused to waive immunity on the advice of counsel, and who was excused from testifying before the Lockwood committee, said yesterday that the union had as much right to conduct a co-operative store next to Schlessinger as to open it at any other place. He indicated that the union was ready to fight the case in the courts.

Besides Krell, Robert Solson, another union official, refused to waive immunity when called before the committee, and he too was excused. Goldstone waived immunity when he appeared before the committee.

SPEEDING STUDENT HELD IN TOMBS

Randolph Hough, Son of Broker, Also Without an Operator's License.

Randolph Hough, eighteen years old, a student, of No. 55 West 55th Street, son of Edward H. Hough, a Wall Street broker, will spend Decoration Day in the Tombs. Young Hough, when arraigned to-day before Magistrate Cobb in Traffic Court, pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding and driving an automobile without a license and was remanded to the Tombs until Wednesday for sentence and investigation by Probation Officer McLeroy.

According to Motorcycle Patrolman Thomas Murphy, Hough was halted by him on May 18 while driving at a speed of twenty-nine miles an hour on Tenth Avenue. Hough, he said, declared that he was en route to his father's office, which he had heard was on fire, and called the attention of the officer to his scanty attire, refusing to the speed with which he left home. When asked for his operator's card, he produced one for 1920, bearing the name of his brother, Edward. Edward failed to appear in court May 21, when expected, and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest. When he was brought into court Patrolman Murphy declared him the wrong man. From the officer's description, Edward Hough recognized his brother and promised to have him in court to-day, which he did.

The two men were arrested early to-day near Perry and Greenwich Avenue. After Jeremiah Sullivan, 41 Perry Street, reported he was robbed of a watch and chain and $5 in cash. The men whom Sullivan said robbed him ran away. O'Connor and Haggerty were not arrested until twenty-five minutes later.

PRAISE OF MOTHER MEANS MORE TO COP THAN HERO MEDAL

GEORGE A. HYLAND

She Is "Proudest in City" When Son Rescues Old Man in Fire.

Patrolman George Hyland, twenty-six, of the Charles Street Station, early yesterday saw smoke curling from a fourth floor window of a five-story tenement at No. 240 West 11th Street. When Hyland opened the street door, smoke nearly overcame him. He groped his way up to the top floor, pounding on the doors and arousing the tenants.

The last man to flee to the roof shouted that a baby had been left in a fourth-floor room. The door was locked. Hyland broke it down, stumbled in, heard groans. Almost overcome, he groped to a bedroom, to find an unconscious man.

Hyland threw the man, John Redmond, seventy-two, across his shoulders and staggered with him down the four long flights to the street. There both patrolman and his burden collapsed. An ambulance surgeon revived both.

Hyland insisted on going back on foot and collapsed an hour later. At his home, No. 501 West 146th Street, Mrs. Hyland, his mother, said her son's heroism had made her the proudest and happiest mother in the city, and that means more to Hyland than medals.

Enormous Fish.

A 35-foot shark was struck near the Equator, geographically as well as anatomically, by the American Legion, a Shipping Board vessel operated by the Munson Line, which arrived to-day from South American ports.

The incident occurred at 2 o'clock on the morning of May 21, and the half severed shark hung to the vessel's prow until 10 o'clock, when it was released by reversing the engines. The size of the fish was said to be remarkable, even for those tropic waters.

NEIGHBOR SHOOTS NEGRO BURGLAR IN HOUSE NEXT DOOR

Mrs. Jones, Awakened, Gave Alarm and Husband Grappled With the Intruder.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., May 28.—A negro who has refused to give his name was shot to-day by Frank Melvin as he was escaping from the home of Frank P. Jones, cashier of the Beverly National Bank, whose bungalow home the Negro, it is alleged, had attempted to rob.

Melvin, who lives next door, heard screams of Mrs. Jones. He ran to the Jones home and saw Mr. Jones grappling with the Negro in the lower part of the house. Melvin got a shotgun, and when he returned, the Negro had succeeded in breaking away from Mr. Jones, and was running from the house.

Melvin fired, according to the police, and the shot charge struck the Negro in the back. The Negro is under treatment in the County Jail and is said to be in serious condition.

The police say that the Negro forced an entrance to the Jones bungalow shortly after midnight and walked into the bedroom and began searching for valuables. Mrs. Jones was awakened, and seeing the man, began screaming. Mr. Jones jumped out of bed and grappled with the Negro, and they fought desperately. The Negro did not appear to be armed, and endeavored to break away. The two men fought through the lower floor and both fell from a front window to the ground.

The Negro was running away when Melvin fired. The fugitive ran two blocks before he fell. A crowd of citizens gathered and held him until the arrival of the police.

The Negro refused to answer any questions. He had not stolen anything from the Jones home.

BOYS ROB LASSOED VICTIM.

Brooklyn Police Hold Ernest Feorl, Whose Tricks They Knew.

Samuel Denton, No. 66 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, was lassoed by two boys, trussed up and robbed of $5 and his watch and chain at York and Main Streets, Brooklyn, last evening. A pedestrian cut the bonds half an hour later and Denton reported the robbery to Detective Sergt. Carey of the Grand Avenue Station.

Sergt. Carey said he remembered that fifteen-year-old Ernest Feorl, No. 66 Ninth Street, Brooklyn, had staged a similar stunt a year ago. He found this boy at home and brought him before Denton, who identified him as one of those who robbed him. Feorl was held on a charge of juvenile delinquency, but denied knowledge of the robbery.

Invites Jury That Freed Him To Dinner as a Moral Test

When All Twelve Accept Amedeo Is Satisfied
His Exoneration Is Complete.

Probably one of the most unusual dinners on record was held in the home of Gaetano Amedeo, No. 1324 Chesholm Street, the Bronx, last night. Amedeo, wealthy real estate operator, was recently acquitted for the shooting of Arturo Carfio, known as "The Scorpion" among the Italian farmers of the Baychester section of the Bronx.

His guests were Albert Vitale, the attorney who defended him, and the twelve jurymen who acquitted him. None knew the others were to attend, but all were there.

"I wanted to know that I had been not only exonerated legally but also morally for the act," Amedeo explained, "and I chose the best way I knew to find out. I decided that if the twelve men who had heard every fact and circumstance connected with the Carfio case accepted an invitation to visit my home and dine with me it would show they had concluded that I was not only legally without blame for the shooting but also morally."

Amedeo had mortgaged a farm in Baychester for Carfio and loaned him money with which to stock it with pigs. Carfio defaulted and foreclosed proceedings were had. Carfio, indifferent up to this time, begged for time when the Sheriff attempted a seizure. Amedeo granted it.

When he called in answer to Carfio's request to discuss the situation Carfio came at him with a shot gun and demanded $500, and Amedeo shot him.

HUNGARY MONARCHISTS CRUSHED IN ELECTIONS

Overwhelming Victory for Government Indicated by Returns.

BUDAPEST, May 29 (Copyright).—First returns from the Hungarian Parliamentary elections indicate an overwhelming victory for the Government. The Carlist right wing, or Monarchist Party, is regarded as crushed on the basis of these results, and it seems probable that the Social Democrats will make a great gain.

Up to 10 o'clock last night the election of seventy-four Government and six Opposition candidates had been assured.

JUDGE LAUDS WORK OF SALVATION ARMY

In sending Anthony Spartano, thirty-one, of No. 652 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, the workhouse for three days to-day, Magistrate Short in the Fifth Avenue Court, Brooklyn, gave praise to the Salvation Army. Spartano, drunk, attended a Salvation Army meeting at 30 Summit Street, Brooklyn, last night, and used foul language.

Magistrate Short asked Spartano if he served in the war, and Spartano said he did not.

"If you had," said the Magistrate, "you wouldn't have hurled those epithets at those God-loving people who sacrifice many measures of life to carry on this wonderful work."

Wake up your skin!

Do you know what that means? Until you do,
you cannot make your skin beautiful.

Just remember this—A poor skin is merely a skin that is partly or wholly inert, asleep.

You may temporarily smooth
or soften such a skin—but you cannot really improve it until you awaken it to life and health.

Don't you see why so many complexion soaps and face creams are disappointing? They omit that one vital thing.

Lifebudy awakens the sleeping beauty that is in your skin.

It cleans and freshens the pores.
It gently awakens the inert cells.
It brings back a healthy circulation.
Its pure palm and cocoanut oils
